Jesus Is Baptized

Lesson for October 16, 1955

THERE is one notable day the church does not celebrate. We have a day for the birth of Jesus, one for his presentation in the Temple, a whole season (Lent) to recall his temptations, a day for the crucifixion, the resurrection, the ascension. But for remembering his baptism, no day is set aside. So it is well that the Sunday schools should do what the church does not do; for the baptism of Jesus was one of the most important events in his life. The reason why the church does not care to celebrate this event, may be that the church does not know quite what it means. We know what other Christian festivals mean,—Pentecost Sunday, Christmas, Good Friday and so on. But what does the baptism of Jesus mean?

Dr. Foreman

Surely Not for His Sins

The heart of the difficulty is just this: Jesus was baptized by John, and John's baptism, we read over and over again, was a baptism of repentance. So we can put the dilemma this way: Was this baptizing of Jesus also a baptism of repentance, and if so, what could he have had to repent of? Or was it altogether different, and if so, then what did it mean if it did not mean repentance? Since the Bible does not answer this question clearly, and since the church has no standard or "orthodox" explanation, perhaps the best thing this column can do is to run over a few answers to that question: Why was Jesus baptized? The reader is invited to think about these and take his choice. One answer, which has three forms, the church has thought about, but generally has not taken seriously. It is the theory that Jesus was baptized, like every one else there at the Jordan, in token of repentance for sin. One extreme form of this theory is that Jesus repented of his own sins. Only a person who thinks of Jesus as an ordinary man could believe that, and the church does not believe it. Another form of this idea is that Jesus repented of his sinful nature; the idea being that if it had a really human nature it must have been a sinful one even if he never sinned. (Just as one may have a weak constitution that never breaks down.) This again the church has overwhelmingly opposed.

"To Fulfill All Righteousness"

Jesus himself gave a reason for being baptized. The trouble is, he did not explain what he meant. He said he did it "to fulfill all righteousness." (Matthew 3:15). It is quite plain that he meant he would not be doing right if he were not baptized. But just what does "fulfilling all righteousness" mean? The explanation most widely accepted in the church is that being baptized was part of the Jewish law at the time, and that Jesus as a loyal Jew observed this as he observed other laws of his religion. There are two weak spots in this theory. One is that there is little or no evidence that baptizing or being baptized was a regular religious observance among the Jews, and the other is that Jesus did not feel obligated to keep strictly all the laws, otherwise he would hardly have had the attitude toward the Sabbath which we know he had.

Friend of Sinners

Still another explanation which is impressing a large number of Christians today, is that Christ, by insisting on being baptized, over John's protests that he did not need it, in a dramatic way was taking the side of sinners. We think of Jesus taking our part and representing us on the Cross. But, it is asked, when did Jesus first identify himself with sinners? Not until his last Friday morning? On the contrary, the suggestion is that Christ there at the Jordan had the opportunity to take his place, publicly and for all to see, either with those who despised sinners and made it hard for them and were proud of themselves, or with those who by being baptized were honest enough to confess their sins and to express their deep desire to be rid of them. So Jesus identifies himself once and for all with the repentant,—not that he himself needed to repent, but to show that the repentant are his people. First to last, he was the Friend of Sinners.

HIS REASONS

NEW MUSEUM OPENS AT BIG MEADOWS, ON DRIVE

Luray, Oct. 12.- A trailside museum has been opened in the Shenandoah National Park to show Skyline Drive travelers samples of the Park's many hidden natural wonders.

Naturalist C. Kenny Dale said the objective of the new museum—the Park's first—is "to open people's eyes to the tremendous possibilities of the park."

The 300-square-mile park high in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia has long been known for the famous Skyline Drive, the scenic highway that opens one of the East's most picturesque regions to millions of motoring Americans.

Dale said the spectacular panoramas visible from the Drive do not need to be pointed out to visitors as do some of the less well known features of the mountain wonderland. The sweeping vistas speak for themselves.

The museum is near Big Meadows Lodge, one of the Park's two resort areas. The other tourist facility is at Skyland, the highest point along Skyline Drive.

More than 1,600,000 persons visited the Park last year—many of them during the fall season when the Blue Ridge turns into a colorful mass of autumnal foliage.

ONE WAY TO DO IT

Barking, England.- Becoming tired of the slovenly speech of his students, the headmaster of a school here decided to do something about it. He bought a tape recorder for the school, gets his pupils to record their voices and then plays back recordings to prove how "slovenly" some speak.

The many glaring weakness[es] our editor, is that he [has] little time to drive about the County and interview the successful farmers and [see] what is being done to make them grow. We love such [to] be happy to report that [from] time off Tuesday [we] made the rounds with Ed Dickerson, local soil [con]servationist.

[Ed] took us by the late Powell Farm, now owned by McKenna. What we saw on our eyes. Just a bit over 100, near Appomattox, [has] been destined to become the showplaces of the county. [We] saw neat grading projects [by] undertakers, and topsoil [pro]tectures, and then we saw [the] modern equipment con[ver]ern stock pond.

[We] stared along to the modern dairy farm of H. B. [Ba]rd from Concord. He has [the] largest operations in the [area] top grade A milk pro[duc]ion, sheep and some beef [cat]tle. Scruggs was kind enough [to] how it all worked, and [we] found out that it takes a [lot] management, and that [is] applying that. Once more [that] farm stock ponds are [the] successful stock farm. [He] has three ponds. Grade [A] portion is a most confin[ing] job—365 days out of [the] the investment is heavy, [is] often uncertain, and the [on]thanks to the bold men [of] that America gets all [the] milk it requires.

Scruggs farm, we circled [the] beautiful area of Appo[mat]tox; past the Raleigh [Ba]rnettes, Davidsons, [Ri]chards, etc. We had not [a] way for quite a spell, [but] caused us to want to [be] same.

[The] National Soil Conserva[tion] we want to add that Appo[mat]tox has made wonderful forward through smart [con]servation policies. Of [cou]rse to the writer, were [the] planting of seedlings to [our] forests and timber [the] goal for this one county [al]one; year is one million [tre]es saw, on our Tuesday [ou]r pine trees coming on [ov]er in recent years. [And] all the soil conservation [is] doing a swell job, [and] that they are getting [ce]rtainly, it shows up [in] the farm where soil [has] been practiced. We [are] shown up in the finan[ces] the farmer.

[Con]cluding with one farm[er] the remark, "We bet [the]rs who drive by this [are] true value of a farm pond [as] a place to fish" He said [he] was all right, but he [put] handsomely, as water [for] livestock! I understand [the]re are now well over [100] stock ponds in Appomattox [and] they are being built [at] rate, often two or three [a] day.

Progress Made On Storage For Grain

Progress is being made toward a grain storage facility for the ten counties in the Lynchburg area. The object is to take advantage of an opportunity to get better prices for the grains grown by farmers. Included in the advantages is drying grain in event it has to be harvested in a moist condition. In the last four years, local growers have been fortunate to have a dry season at harvest time, but the problem of storage facilities has been ever present, and steps are underway to provide such storage in this area.

To accomplish this goal, it will be necessary for the grain growers of Appomattox to buy $16,870 worth of stock in the storage and drying plant to be built, near Lynchburg. Spokesmen say this is not for the benefit of any particular farm organization, but for all grain growers in Appomattox and the other counties in the ten-county group. All business men are invited to join in this project.

Information on stock subscription may be obtained from Jim Smith, County Agent; T. DeWitt Evans, treasurer of this farmer benefit movement, or from C. T. Moses or Martin Kraus.

It is understood that well over $3,000 in stock committments have already been made, and that the project will be followed through at once. It is urged that grain growers contact the above-named, and attend all meetings being help in this cause.

Reign at Homecoming

. . . . Miss Peggy Garrette

. . . . J. D. Guill, Jr.

. . . . Miss Nancy Jane Abbitt

. . . . Bob Holt

Miss Peggy Garrette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Divels Garrette, of Pamplin, and J. D. Guill, Jr., son of J. D. Guill, of Appomattox, both members of the senior class, will reign as queen and king of Appomattox High School on Friday, Oct. 21, for the annual home-coming ceremonies.

Little Miss Nancy Jane Abbitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Abbitt, Jr., and Bob Holt, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Holt, all of Appomattox, will reign as junior queen and king of the Elementary School.

The home-coming parade, led by the Appomattox School Band, will leave from the rear of the high school at 2 P. M. It will move across Church Street to Court Street, turn right and move to the Elementary School, and back to Court Street. Then it will pass the court house, turn left down Main Street, and proceed back to the school by way of Church Street.

The A. H. S. Blue Hornets football team will meet the Brookville Bees, of Brookville High School in the home-coming football game at the town ball park, at 8 P. M.

There will be a home-coming dance in the school cafeteria immediately following the game, with The Dixie Dandies playing. All students and alumni of Appomattox High School are invited to attend.

The kings and queens will be crowned during the half time at the football game.

The Appomattox High School Blue Hornets hope to shake off a two-game streak of tough luck and return to the victory column when they meet Brookville H. S. in the annual home-coming football game here Friday night at the Town Ball Park.

The Blue Hornets tied Gretna two weeks ago, 13 to 13, in a game played at Gretna. A. H. S. had three touchdowns called back and also due to numerous penalties had other scoring threats stopped. The Blue Hornets held Gretna on the ground to a minus yardage and they did get a first down. The local team played well both on offense and defense.

Last Friday night, the Blue Hornets traveled to Halifax to meet the Group One Halifax R. S., and lost by a score of 15 to 14. Again, Appomattox lost one touchdown and possibly two more by having penalties called after scoring touchdowns. The Halifax game was played in very deep mud, with big pools of water over the field, thus slowing the attack of both teams. On defense, Tommie O'Brien, John Paulette, Dickie O'Brien, Bradley Babcock and Jack Burks played well. On the offense, Alton Smith scored one touchdown, and had one 65 yard run called back. The other touchdown was scored on the first play from scrimmage, on an end around play, as Raymond Ferguson threw a beautiful 40-yard pass to Jack Caldwell, who ran 30 yards for the score.

Coach Gordon Bragg says the team is showing steady improvement and is out to win the home-coming game this Friday night. They need this victory to stay in the running for the district championship.
